

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

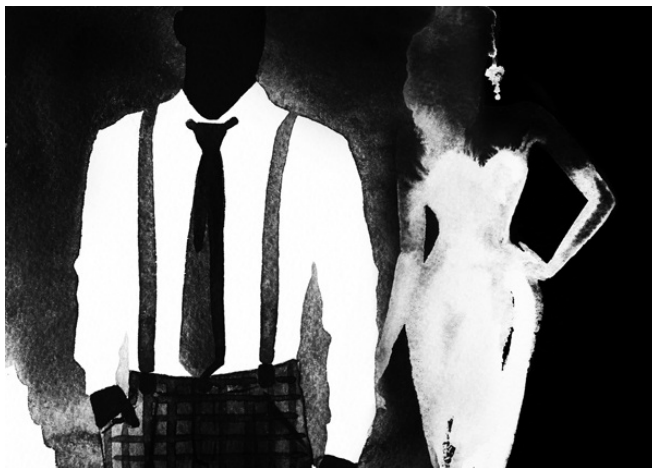

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Here's how to make a good impression!

Learning Outcome

Describe necessity, duty, advice, or strong disapproval in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can express necessity, duty and advice.
- I can express true, untrue, and possible events.
- I can exchange opinions about events and experiences in various time frames.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think first impressions are important?
- How can you make a good first impression at work?
- How can you make a bad first impression?

Let's Explore!

Adam gives Kristi some tips about starting their first day at work.

* A "tip" is a piece of advice or a suggestion.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Adam: Here's your cappuccino, Kristi. Are you nervous about our first day?
- Kristi: Thanks. I'm a bit stressed.
- Adam: We needn't feel stressed.
- Kristi: It helps that we're starting together on the same day.
- Adam: While I was on the bus, I did an internet search about how to make a good impression on your first day at work. I found 5 tips.
- Kristi: Oh, cool. What did you find out?
- Adam: The first thing is you need to have a positive attitude. Nothing works better than having and expressing a positive attitude as soon as you start the day. You mustn't bring non-work problems to the office.
- Kristi: We know that's true.
- Adam: The next thing is you must dress professionally. Since people don't have an established idea of your abilities yet, they may make judgments based on what you wear in the first few weeks.
- Kristi: Too late to change today.
- Adam: You look great. The next thing is to show team spirit. We are now part of a team, and teams work together to solve problems and get the job done. You will show loyalty to your co-workers by sharing credit with the team.
- Kristi: I totally believe that.
- Adam: The fourth thing is learn co-workers names quickly. You might repeat the person's name to help you remember it. You could also use memory-aid techniques, like associating a person's name with some personal feature.
- Kristi: Ever since I forgot Mr. Brody's name during the interview, I've realized I need to work on that.
- Adam: The last tip is to listen more than you talk. You need to figure out what is going on, both officially and unofficially. To do that, you must listen carefully to what people say or don't say, and be observant.
- Kristi: It sounds like you have great ideas for your first article!

Let's Practice!

Kristi talks about possible strategies for the first day at work.

Instructions: Write down the word from the box to correctly complete the sentence.

1	may have will	2	will have have could	3	may not will have will	4	might will have must	5	could mustn't won't have
---	---------------------	---	----------------------------	---	------------------------------	---	----------------------------	---	--------------------------------

1. Since people don't have an established idea of your abilities yet, they _____ make judgments based on what you wear.
2. You _____ wear dress pants and a dress shirt.
3. You _____ show loyalty to your co-workers by sharing credit with the team.
4. You _____ repeat the person's name to help you remember it.
5. You _____ also use memory-aid techniques, like associating a person's name with some personal feature.

Let's Practice!

Adam gives his opinion about events and experiences related to work.

Instructions: Unscramble the words and form the complements of the unfinished sentences below. Use capital letters where necessary.

1. on / I / the / was / bus / , / while
2. start / you / day / soon / as / the / as
3. since / I / forgot / ever
4. as / team / you / soon / , / as / of / a / are / part

1. _____ I did an internet search about how to make a good impression on your first day at work.
2. Nothing works better than having and expressing a positive attitude _____
3. _____ Mr. Brody's name during the interview, I've realized I need to work on that.
4. _____ you need to work together to solve problems and get the job done.

Extension Activity

Write more tips about how to make a good impression at work.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a list of the ways of making a good impression that are mentioned in this lesson.
- With a partner, discuss these suggestions, and try to think of others.
- Go online. Try to find a total of 6 - 10 different suggestions to make a good impression at work.
- Write the suggestions.
- In your own words, explain why each one is important.
- Add 1 - 2 things you should avoid (not do) to your list.
- Read your list to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I read about ways to make a good impression at work.

☐ ☐

I discuss making a good impression at work.

☐ ☐

I write suggestions for making a good impression.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- judgment (noun): making a decision about something
e.g. People may make judgments based on what you wear in the first few weeks.
- to dress (verb): to choose and wear clothes for a particular situation, like work e.g. The next thing is you must dress professionally.
- established (adjective): set; created; made up
e.g. People don't have an established idea of your abilities yet.
- loyalty (noun): dedication towards a person or a group
e.g. You will show loyalty to your co-workers by sharing credit with the team.
- to share credit (expression): to say that a situation is good because another person or group worked hard e.g. It's important to share credit with all the people who work on a team.

Learning Points

Modals to Express True or Untrue Events in the Present

The modals may, might, could and will are usually used to talk about possibility in the future (predicting).

You can also use the modals may, might, could and will to say whether you think something is true or likely in the present.

You put the modal before the main verb. It is also possible to add not to the modal to talk about things you believe to be untrue.

For example:

You might be right. (It's likely)

You may have a point there. (It's not impossible)

That could be true. (It's not impossible)

That 'll be my sister on the phone. (I'm quite sure)

Beth 'll be arriving in Montreal about now. (It's probable)

She won't be there already! (I don't believe she is)

Examples:

- Since people don't have an established idea of your abilities yet, they may make judgments based on what you wear in the first few weeks.
- You will show loyalty to your co-workers by sharing credit with the team.

Learning Points

Five Tips to Make a Great First Impression at Work - What is Necessary and Not Necessary

First impressions are important. When you meet someone, it is crucial that you present yourself in the best way possible, both in how you act and what you look like.

Here are five tips to keep in mind if you want to make a great first impression on your first day at a new job:

1. You need to have a positive attitude.
2. You mustn't bring non-work problems to the office.
3. You must dress professionally.
4. You need to figure out what is going on, both officially and unofficially.
5. You must listen carefully to what people say or don't say, and be observant.

Follow these guidelines to make the best first impression possible!

Notice the use of the modal verbs must, mustn't, need and needn't. You use these modals to express necessity and what is not necessary.

For example:

We needn't feel stressed. (It is not necessary for us to feel stressed)

