

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Do you have any feedback?

Learning Outcome

Describe necessity, duty, advice, or strong disapproval in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs, professions and careers.
- I can express necessity, duty, and advice.
- I can talk about events and experiences in various time frames.

Ask your partner:

- Do you find it easy to receive feedback (suggestions for improvement) at work? Why or why not?
- Why do some people find it difficult to receive feedback?
- How can managers make it easier to give feedback?

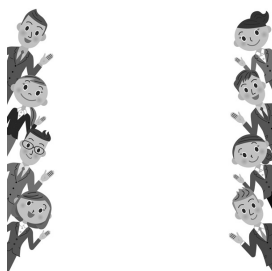

Let's Explore!

Mr. Brody talks to Kristi and Adam about the publication process.

* A "process" is a series of steps leading to a planned result.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Boris: Good morning to our newest recruits!

Kristi: Thank you, Mr. Brody. We've been looking forward to the first day ever since we received the job offer.

Adam: We are very happy to be here.

Kristi: Could you tell us about your expectations?

Boris: Sure. As editorial assistants, you will perform a range of administrative and editorial tasks for various publications. You will act as the liaison for the many people involved in the publication process, from the receipt of copy from authors through to the handover to production staff. You must stay on top of tasks in each stage in the process.

Adam: Do you have any suggestions for adjusting to the work environment? This is my first real job.

Boris: Well, it goes without saying, you should show up to work every day and establish a good attendance record. You need to inform us about any emergencies that prevent you from being at work.

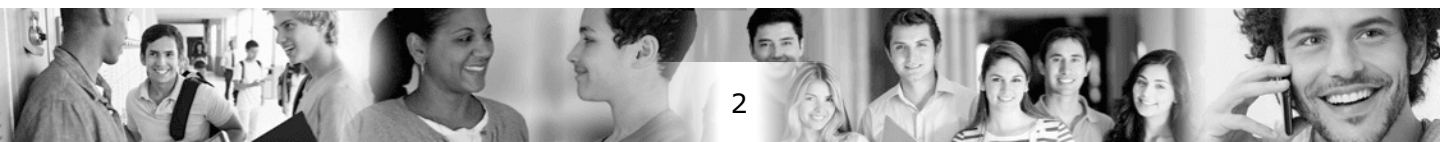

Adam: You needn't worry about that, Mr. Brody.

Boris: Excellent. The next thing is you mustn't be shy to ask for feedback. We will put you in contact with a mentor as soon as we choose one for each of you. This person will answer any immediate questions while you are in training, and give you advice for long-term planning. They could help you advance your career.

Kristi: That would be great.

Boris: Finally, I would suggest you take advantage of after-hours activities as soon as you have some free time. At BFP, we pride ourselves in having great team spirit that is forged while sharing common experiences. We have formal or informal after-hour activities, such as sports leagues. I would be great if you could get involved, because these types of activities are a great way to bond with your co-workers.

Adam: I can't wait!

Let's Practice!

Mr. Brody explains how Adam and Kristi will act as liaisons* and have a mentor.

*A "liaison" is a person who helps coordinate the work of different people.

A "mentor" is a person who helps someone who is new in a company.

Instructions: Read the text on page 2 again. Select the correct answer.

1. Mr. Brody calls Adam and Kristi his ...
a) new employees. b) new friends. c) new colleagues. d) new recruits.
2. Adam and Kristi will be ...
a) copy editors. b) editorial assistants. c) editors. d) authors.
3. Adam and Kristi will act as liaisons between people working in the publication process. This means they...
a) will be very busy. b) will connect people together. c) will do a lot of things. d) will help a lot of people.
4. How does Mr. Brody summarize the publication process?
a) From production staff to authors. b) From authors to editorial assistants. c) From authors to production staff. d) From production staff to editorial assistants.
5. What is something Mr. Brody does NOT suggest?
a) They should arrive at work each day. b) They should ask for feedback from a mentor. c) They should eat lunch with their new colleagues. d) They should take advantage of social activities.

Let's Practice!

Mr. Brody talks about how Adam and Kristi can adjust to their new workplace.

Instructions: Use the words from the box to correctly complete each sentence.

while / while you / ever since / as soon as we / as soon as

1. We've been looking forward to our first day _____ we received the job offer.
2. We will put you in contact with a mentor _____ choose one for each you.
3. This person will answer any immediate questions _____ are in training.
4. At BFP, we pride ourselves in having great team spirit that is forged _____ sharing common experiences.
5. I would suggest you take advantage of after-hours activities _____ you have some free time.

Extension Activity

Write a dialogue in which a manager gives a worker feedback.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose a situation at work in which a manager needs to give feedback because a worker is not doing something correctly (example: they arrive late, their work is not good, etc.).
- Write a dialogue of 12 - 15 lines. One person is the manager giving feedback to the employee. The other person is the employee who tries to defend their position.
- Give suggestions, like having a mentor.
- Practice your dialogue.
- Change roles.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I give feedback to an employee.

☐ ☐

I give suggestions to an employee.

☐ ☐

I listen to feedback from a manager.

☐ ☐

I explain the situation to a manager.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- recruit (noun): a person who is new (who has been recruited) e.g. Good morning to our newest recruits!
- handover (noun): passing responsibility from one person to another in a process e.g. You will act as the liaison for the many people involved in the publication process, from the receipt of copy from authors through to the handover to production staff.
- attendance record (noun): the number of days an employee is present at work e.g. It goes without saying, you should show up to work every day and establish a good attendance record.
- immediate (adjective): for right away; urgent e.g. This person will answer any immediate questions while you are in training.
- to get involved (verb): to participate in e.g. I would be great if you could get involved in the recreational activities.
- to bond (verb): to connect on a personally level
e.g. These activities are a great way to bond with your colleagues.
- co-worker (noun): colleague; a person you work with e.g. It's important to get to know your co-workers on a personal level.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Necessity

You use the modals must, need and their negatives mustn't and needn't to talk about what is necessary and not necessary.

You use must and mustn't when you decide for yourself what is necessary.

For example:

You mustn't keep asking for my help all the time. (= I don't want you to)

I really must be going. (I think I must)

You can also use must and mustn't for impersonal necessity (something that imposed upon you).

For example:

The screw must be tight for it to hold.

You use need and needn't to talk about obligations.

For example:

You need to inform us about any emergencies that prevent you from being at work.

You needn't come to dinner if you don't want to. (In this example, the authority comes from the speaker).

Examples:

- You must stay on top of tasks in each stage in the process.
- You needn't worry about that, Mr. Brody.
- The next thing is you mustn't be shy.

Learning Points

Time Clauses Using as soon as, ever since, while

You use time clauses to be precise about when an event or action occurred or will occur.

Remember, a clause has its own subject and verb. They can come at the beginning of a sentence (separated by a comma) or at the end of a sentence.

Look at the chart as a reference for different words or phrases used in time clauses and their meanings or uses.

Word/Phrase	Meaning	Example
as soon as	one thing following another	We will put you in contact with a mentor as soon as we choose one for each of you. ever since	when things started	We've been looking forward to the first day ever since we received the job offer.
while	things happening at the same time	This person will answer any immediate questions while you are in training.

